It is breakfast time! But today your mother has prepared the dreaded, hated 'Upma'! You have a struggle trying to swallow the 'concrete' stuff. At last you ask your mother to at least provide something liquid to mix so it becomes easier to swallow. There is no chutney too! Your mother reassures you and goes into the kitchen to fetch curds. Unfortunately, she had forgotten to curdle the milk, as a result there is no curds formed!

Unmoved you ask her to get whatever little curd is there and the fresh milk. You pour out that small spoonful of curds into the half litre of milk and after waiting for 5minutes, you begin enjoying the freshly formed thick curds!
